People have walked on this farmland for many years and two footpaths are shown on the View Ranger map. There is a lovely view from the land at the Ridgeway right across to Cockfosters and this should be preserved for future generations. COVID has shown how important green space is for physical and mental well-being so Enfield would be all the poorer for the loss of this amenity. The amount of housing proposed would impact hugely on all services and would generate high levels of traffic and pollution.

The collection of garden centres at Crews Hill is unique and would not only be a sad loss for the residents of Enfield but also the wider community, as many people travel a fair distance to make a day out of visiting Crews Hill to shop, browse and eat. There is nowhere else like it in the country, where there is such a diverse mix of shops and businesses.
