Hi,

I realise people need to live somewhere but brownfield sites should be used first.

There are properties built in London and sold to overseas investors, these have vacant capacity.

Why is this allowed to happen? These laws need to be reviewed and changed to allow the people living in the United Kingdom to have homes, not left empty for Overseas investment and Insurance Companies.

If this was changed this would relieve some of the pressure on Greenbelt land.

The Environment should be protected of which Greenbelt is part of.

Kind regards,
