I am absolutely outraged to hear of Enfield councils plan to build on a large and beautiful part of the green belt to build new houses.

Policy 10 - the chase park development pages 80-87, policy 9 pages 77-80 and SA 45 stand out as the worst amongst some very poor ideas.

At a time when govts across the world are looking to protect the environment you are planning to do the opposite and replace beautiful and environmentally important areas with new housing developments.

As a borough you have a lot of brown field sites and areas you could regenerate so it beggars belief that you are looking to simply build on green land loosing it for future generations. I can only see this as revenue generating for the council with no consideration for the community you represent.

I reject all your proposals. I'm currently not an Enfield resident, but I have been for many years and i will likely be again but this is the relevant to everyone not just those in your borough. Please think hard about what you are doing and the long term consequences, taking away a stunning part of London. As a child I would walk through and play in those fields. It allowed me to escape from the pollution or other negative distraction toons and even though I lived in the city it taught me to live the countryside and it's nature. Please let other generations enjoy the same.
