I hereby wish to object to the redevelopment of the supermarket and car park to mixed-use homes and non-residential floor space.

For many reasons including the following two, I know my view is shared with many many locals:

- I shop for my vulnerable mother in law and ourselves in that particular Sainsburys every week, it is the only decent supermarket for miles with a decent selection at reasonable prices. I drive there from Southgate every week and do my local shopping in the surrounding local independent shops to support local businesses. As so many, many other locals in the area.

- Building additional housing in an area with a huge lack of school places is a disaster! There is a severe lack of school places in Enfield borough, and building so much housing in that area is only going to make it worse. Personally we had to send our children to school in Palmers Green as there were no places in the school within walking distance of our house, so I have been driving my children to school every day from Southgate to Palmers Green for 9 years! Another example: My sister in law lives right behind the Sainsburys in Winchmore Hill, she could not get a local school place and is having to drive her daughter to a primary school much further away every day which is hugely stressful for two full time working parents.
