Hi

Apologies for the lateness of my email; for some unknown reason my email of two weeks ago bounced back.

My thoughts are:

I support the London City Park scheduling around Crews Hill combined with the new housing in the Green Belt. This is an underutilised area of Enfield that few residents utilise other than a twice a year pop into one of the garden centres and perhaps a Christmas tree. Furthermore, the fields never seem to be appropriately used for agriculture, and DEFRA's plans show the soil is of low agricultural value. Plus all the earth screen abutting the motorway would make it a lot quieter for new houses/residents, and the train line would ease congestion in Enfield.

Secondly: I'm against the London City Park with industrial scheduling at New Farm Cottage Farm. This would be an isolated location to develop, and the land already forms part of a functioning farm and always has done.

Please add my comments to the rest of the public comments.
