
To whom it may concern ,

While I appreciate that more housing is needed; how many of these proposed dwellings will be affordable to the average family. Many being built currently appear to be for the higher end market.

i have concern over the proposed building on the Green Belt once described as the "lungs of London". In this time of concern for our environment should we be destroying our green spaces, where people can exercise and relax . This has been shown in the Pandemic to be both good for mental and physical health.

Many of the sites have mature trees which have taken years to grow.

More houses means more cars. The local roads are already congested, trying to cross the Ridgeway has become very difficult due to the volume of traffic and lack of pedestrian crossings. There is also concern over schools and doctors surgeries which are already overstretched.

The very things that bring people to Enfield and Crews Hill and thus boost the economy of the area are also at risk.

yours faithfully
