I have already lodged my objections to the building of high rise buildings in Enfield but, at the time of writing, I was not aware that one of the plans was to build on Sainsbury's car park in Winchmore Hill. To say that I am horrified at the prospect of not being able to shop at that Sainsbury's is putting it mildly. I am elderly, disabled, and that is the only supermarket available that enables me to shop for myself as I can park close to the entrance. I suspect this thoughtless planning is going to affect a great number of Enfield residents.

I cannot believe it was even considered in the first place and definitely think it should be scrapped without a second thought!!!
