

Dear Sir,

With the ever-increasing reports that "research" shows we need more green spaces and that air pollution seriously affects our physical and mental health, we should expect more thoughtful planning for future housing.

There is no excuse for such lack of imagination. It is too easy to destroy our green belt and also farm land (the latter particularly IRRESPONSIBLE when there is overwhelming evidence that UK is not self-sufficient in food).

Surely there are brown field sites which can and should be utilised. It is shameful that such cavalier attitudes persist about our future wellbeing, by simply destroying green belt and farm land. THERE ARE SENSIBLE ALTERNATIVES. Please do not destroy our common future.

Yours faithfully,
