

Good morning,

I fully support the building of more housing in Enfield. As someone who is in the top 80% of earners but who can't afford to buy a property in the area of London I want to live in, I am constantly upset and disappointed by people who oppose more housing. Mostly they already have their house, their home, and it's tripled in price since they bought it. I want a house, a home. Building more is the only moral, practical and sensible thing a council can do.
