

My main concern is closing down the supermarkets in Southgate (Asda) - people really on these supermarkets for their jobs, food and mental well being.

It is the life blood of the area - where will people go for their daily/weekly shop if it were to close?

I personally shop for an elderly couple there as well as doing my own supermarket shopping - not everyone has a car to drive 20 minutes away to the next supermarket should this one go...

It feels like a very ill conceived plan - people will lose their jobs, people will have to travel further for food, not everyone will be able to do so, it will kill the area.
