

Hi,

I would like to formally object to building on the green belt, specifically the 'Land at Chase Park'.

There is no need to build on the Green belt. I use this to walk on, it has helped myself and many others during the pandemic.

For my mental health it has also been a great help with being able to have such beautiful greenery to admire from a distance and use on my doorstep also.

I have lost 3 stone since January with the help of that land at the bottom of my road. We are also starting a family which I was hoping to bring a child into such a beautiful area. Now I feel it will be overdeveloped, and the traffic and crime in the area is already worrying. With more of an influx in such a tight area I can only imagine it'll effect everyone negatively also.

Please consider more brown sites to build on, not the green belt. Spread out to Brimsdown and along the A10 if you must build in Enfield.

Please also keep our Enfield town center and crews hill safe, these have been fantastic to shop and visit once/twice a week and hope to continue doing so in years to come.
