

I don't normally, send two emails in such quick succession, but I am rather worried about these new plans.

I can see inch by inch the green belt being eaten into, until everything meets in the middle. Have you had any contact with either, Enfield society or Enfield Roadwatch.

Both have seen many sites in the borough that could be used. I am terrified of the loss of close to 1000 acres (350 hectares) this is slightly larger than the whole of Hampstead Heath!

Can we afford to destroy, the best asset Enfield has? This is the very last remains, of Enfield Chase. Nothing absolutely nothing is worth losing it for.

I therefore, beg you to reconsider this, ourselves and the future generations, will lose this forever.

Once lost always gone.

I suffer from both severe depression and Anxiety. Losing something like this would impact a huge amount, on already bad problem.

Thanks you for taking the time to read this Email.
