

I am against many aspects of the local plan.

I do not want to see more high rise dwelling. Look at the trouble that arises in the ones we have already. The council has already pulled down some of the blocks built in the 60s, so why build more? The plan glosses over the fact that it has already given permission to build high rise buildings on the site of B and Q, despite the fact that they will completely dwarf everything around them.

I do not support building on the green belt and on green fields. On one hand the plan babbles about the greening of Enfield and on the other it talks of building over swathes of open land. This shows how duplicitous the plan is.

If the Council really wanted to produce some housing, why has it so miserably failed at Meridian Water. How long has that saga continued?

Why is the plan so anti the car? I walk, I use public transport and I drive (I like many people cannot ride a bike - sorry). There is a place for each. I use my car to shop as I cannot carry shopping home. I go to my local Tesco at Savoy Pde, Morrisons, Southbury Road, Tesco, Ponders End and Sainsbury's, Crown Road, because there is surface level parking. If these are destroyed and multistorey parking introduced, I will be shopping at Brookfield in Cheshunt. You, the council, have already taken away the only surface car park in Enfield Town, to build some ugly office block for Metaswitch. Now that has changed hands, how long is that going to stay in Enfield?

Oddly enough despite promoting the building of this ugly office block, all the other offices in Enfield Town have been allowed to be turned in to flats, some so small I wouldn't house a dog in them, but you gave permission anyway.

The plan keeps referring to Tottenham Football Club. The club has walked over the council for years. Every time it has put in another planning application - for stadiums, hotels, etc, the council just rolls over despite local opposition - all on green belt that the council is supposed to protect.. Now the council has given it Whitewebbs, despite the fact it has no experience in looking after green areas. Have you seen the hedges around the Club's land? Very eco-friendly. Do you really think the land will revert to the council in 25 years. I bet a pound to a penny it will not.

We were promised public consultation before the fate of Whitewebbs was confirmed. That never happened. We were lied to.

The consultation in regard to this plan has been very flawed. No meetings, three days in libraries in August. What a joke.

I have no faith in the council or council officers to safeguard the future of the borough I have always lived in my entire life.
