

Hello,

I would like to comment my support for allocating green belt sites for new homes in Enfield's new local plan. London is in the midst of a severe housing shortage, pushing up the cost of housing for renters such as myself and making homeownership seem like an impossible dream. The green belt is one of the major restrictions preventing London from meeting its growing population's housing need. I welcome Enfield's proposal to release green belt land and to face the fact that there is no way out of our housing crisis without building enough homes.
